

(3.8) Adequate numbers of Computers and Usage of Computer hardware

(Total score-10)

The college has an adequate number of computers to meet the academic and administrative requirements of students and faculty. Computers laboratories are equipped with updated systems, printers, scanners and essential peripherals to support teaching-learning activities. Computers are utilized for documentation, communication, research, data entry, design and other operational tasks. Students regularly use computer hardware for practical sessions, online learning resources, data analysis, digital assignments and project work. The efficient utilization of these resources ensures that learners gain hand-on experience with ICT tools and develop necessary digital skills. The goal is to determine whether current resources meet operational needs and to identify areas for improvement. The institution has an adequate number of computers with regular and effective usage of computer hardware by students and staff, thereby fulfilling the 10-marks category.
